Canton Lacks Light And Water For Day When Workers Strike

Disturbances Over Failure To Make Dr. Wu Civil Governor Take Serious Turn

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Canton, July 14.—The city was without water yesterday owing to a strike of the workmen at the waterworks, which are now guarded by soldiers.

Similarly the city last night was without electric light, the Chinese employes of the Kwangtung Electric Supply Company having gone on strike yesterday.

The strikers undertake to resume on condition that Dr. Wu Ting-fang is appointed Civil Governor.

On Saturday a group of students endeavored to induce the ricsha coolies to strike. Students paraded the New Bund and ordered Europeans to step out of their rickshas. An incident is reported in which a European lady, while making the journey to the railway station to take the train to Hongkong, was asked by a student to leave the vehicle. The coolie remonstrated and told the student he must work for a daily wage but if the student undertook to pay him 20 cents a day, the price of a bowlful of rice, then he would lay down his ricsha shafts.

GERMAN ASSEMBLY TOLD PLAN OF FUTURE POLICY

Erzberger Asserts Intention Is Not To Raise Annual War Loans

(Reuter's Service)

Weimar, July 8.—At the meeting of the National Assembly, Herr Erzberger, in a statement on the financial position of Germany, said it was not intended to raise annual war loans. The first step in reconstruction would be an inheritance tax and a big levy on property.

The year's expenditure totals 25,000 million marks, with a deficit of 10,000 million marks.

Herr Erzberger said the Empire's income must be increasd by nine hundred percent, and in individual states and communes perhaps by one hundred percent. The new taxation would include a large tax on business turnovers. One of the most urgent tasks was the removal of the 72,000 million marks of floating debt, which was a constant danger. It was the duty of the propertied classes to bow to States compulsion.

Commons Stirred By Notice Of Increased Coal Prices

Necessity Grows Out Of Concessions Of Shorter Hours And Higher Wages Granted Miners

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 9.—In the House of Commons today there was a sensation when Sir Auckland Geddes, Minister of National Service and Reconstruction, announced that the Government had decided that the price of coal to the consumer must be raised by six shillings a ton from July 16. It was hoped this increase would meet the increased cost of payment of a standard wage, the reduction of hours and a reduced shift.

He was unable in detail to estimate the effect on the export trade. Obviously the increased cost of fuel would seriously hamper manufactures and affect employment.

Will Have Serious Effect

Replying to whether the increase would not close most of the Lancashire manufacturing concerns, he said that it was probable the effect would be very serious. There was no good in imagining we were getting coal cheaper by paying for it from taxation. It cost the same and the Government considered it much better the people should know what the production of coal cost. The increased price was required to meet the cost of coal after the profits had been limited, in accordance with the interim report of the Sankey Commission, to fourteen pence per ton.

Mr. C. B. Stanton, the national democrat and M.P. for Merthyr Tydbil, asked whether there was any reason why the Government should pander to the miners and allow them to exploit the whole British public.

Sir Auckland Geddes, in a further statement, said one factor of increased cost was a diminishing output. Another was the increased cost of "Getting" per ton. The price might be reduced later when the economies in method forshadowed in the Sankey Report had been effected.

To Debate Question

Mr. A. Bonar Law said that the Government had long considered the increase and concluded that it was utterly impossible that the coal industry should be subsidised by the taxpayer. There was therefore no alternative except to make the price approximate to the cost of production. He suggested the House should debate the matter on the 14th. The House agreed.

Hours Are Reduced

London, July 8.—In the House of Commons today the Home Secretary introduced a bill providing for the amendment of the Coal Mines Act whereby seven hours is substituted for eight and eight for nine-and-a-half. If at the end of 1920 Parliament passes a resolution that the economic position of the coal industry will permit a further reduction of working hours, then from July 13, 1921, the miner's day will be six hours.

REPORT OF DISORDERS IN ITALY EXAGGERATED

Messages To Peking Legation Say Trouble Was Due To High Cost Of Living

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 11.—The Italian Legation has received a further telegram from Rome confirming the fact that the first report sent abroad concerning disorders in Italy was greatly exaggerated. The high cost of living was mainly responsible for local strikes and even at Florence, where these strikes became more general, order was promptly restored. There is no political gravity in such manifestations.

Quiet Is Restored

(Reuter's Service)

Rome, July 9.—Yesterday was fairly quiet in the large towns work being everywhere resumed. Reduced prices fixed by the local authorities are being enforced in many places and a general strike in Rome has been averted.

MEASURES TAKEN TO CUT BRITISH FOOD PRICES

Complaint Made Thousands Of Tons Of Meat In Australia Are Awaiting Shipment

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 7.—There is a widespread movement, especially in labor circles, to urge the Government to take drastic measures to prevent profiteering in prime necessaries and arrangements are being completed for a joint deputation of co-operative bodies, the Labor Party and the Trade Union Congress with the object of impressing on the Government the necessity of continuing to control prices. Complaints are being made that thousands of tons of meat in Australia and New Zealand are awaiting transport while thousands of bales of wool are held at the London docks.

Mr. Will Thorne, Labor M. P. for West Ham, in a statement to the Daily Express, says "Labor will use its industrial organisation. That is the only alternative to the jumping food prices."

The Food Ministry announces a reduction of a penny a pound in the price of imported meat.

TALKS OF TREATY

President Is Confident League Has Support Of Americans

GOES TO SENATE

He Was Due To Speak At Washington In Upper House Thursday

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 11.—The following cable has been received in Peking, dated Washington, July 8:

President Wilson returned today on board the s.s. George Washington and received a rousing welcome. The fleet of dreadnaughts in New York harbor gave him a salute, every ship firing the President's salute, and all the commercial shipping joined in with whistles and sirens. In New York the bands were playing and there was a general display of flags and bunting on all houses.

Officials Meet President

President Wilson was met by the Vice-President, the various members of the Cabinet and many Senators and Representatives. Governor Smith of New York State and Mayor Hylan of New York City were at the head of many delegations from neighboring states who sent their most prominent men.

The New York World says: "President Wilson returns from the Peace Conference brilliantly successful. He succeeded in making the League of Nations the very foundation for peace, which was the distinctive achievement of the Peace Conference."

To Address Senate

The President will address the Senate on Thursday.

Senator Borah, leader of the Republican Opposition, has told the papers that he learns that Mr. Lansing, General Bliss and Mr. Henry White, of the American Mission to negotiate peace in Paris, were opposed to the Japanese control of Shantung at the expense of China.

Tells What Other Nations Are Expecting From America

(Reuter's Service)

New York, July 9.—President Wilson in his speech on his arrival dwelt at length on what other nations expected of America from the peace. He declared the nation must live up to these expectations. He believed that if the people would study the treaty they would see it was a just peace and one which, if it can be preserved, will save the world from unnecessary bloodshed.

Scene Is Colorful

Washington, July 9.—A bower of flowers with rows of girls attired as heralds and a tableau of Columbia welcoming her son were features of President Wilson's return.

The President made a speech in which he expressed confidence that Americans favored the League of Nations.

Met By Warships

New York, July 8.—An escort of four dreadnaughts and thirty-six destroyers met the s.s. George Washington off Sandy Hook early this morning. The presidential salute was fired. Forty-five warships, headed by the Pennsylvania bearing the Vice-President, the members of the Cabinet and other officials welcomed President Wilson outside the harbor.

Greeted By Throngs

New York, July 8.—President Wilson landed today and was received by enormous crowds. He drove to Carnegie Hall where he delivered a speech regarding the Peace Treaty.

President Wilson warmly congratulated Commander Scott, of the British airship R34, who was present.

General Denikin's Advance In Siberia Is Unchecked

Tank And Aeroplanes Are Used In Capture Of Tsaritsin Where Bolshevists Lost Heavily

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 8.—An official communique states that:

The advance of General Denikin is continuing with great success on the whole front.

On the Astrakhan front the Volunteers have reached a point on the Caspian coast 55 miles southwest of Astrakhan, which is the largest seaport and the base of the Bolshevist flotilla.

Another column has reached the bank of the Volga northeast of Chernivar. Heavy fighting has occurred in this sector.

Capture Of Tsaritsin

Tsaritsin was taken by General Denikin after fierce fighting. The outer defenses of the town were pierced with heavy losses to the enemy. Tanks and aeroplanes cooperated and the Bolshevists fled in confusion, abandoning 10,000 prisoners, 18 guns, 30 machine-guns, five armored trains, 5,000 wagons and 121 engines. Large numbers of enemy cavalry were driven into the Volga and annihilated. The Volunteers are pursuing and have occupied Dubovka, 30 miles above Tsaritsin, which is the base of the 10th Red Army. Much river craft and three million roubles in cash, which was to pay the Red Army were taken.

Further northwest heavy fighting resulted in continued progress by the Volunteers, who have taken Balashov, which is the supply base of the 9th Red Army, with 70 guns, much ammunition and many engines and wagons.

A serious rising against the Bolshevists has occurred in the rear of this sector around Tambov.

Furious Counter-Attacks

On the Voronej-Kursk front the Bolshevists have been delivering furious counter-attacks for the last two days against the Don Cossacks, who have pushed their line to the Balashov-Valuiki railway, and are now less than 50 miles from Voronej.

On the Dnieper front the operations have been brilliantly successful. Ekaterinoslav, the capital of that fertile province, and Alexandrovsk, an important railway junction, have been taken and the Volunteers have crossed to the west bank of the Dnieper on a front of 70 miles. An important result of the operation has been the entire liberation of the Crimea owing to the fact that the Bolshevists have been deprived by the capture of Alexandrovsk of their sole railway line of communications.

Advance On Petrograd Checked

Copenhagen, July 7.—The Esthonian communique reports that the North Russian Volunteer Army which has been victoriously advancing towards Petrograd, has suffered a reverse and has abandoned the fortress of Krasna-Jagorka and several stations on the Petrograd-Narva railway west of Gatchina.

Petrograd Embassies Occupied

Helsingfors, July 6.—It is reported that all the foreign embassies, legations and consulates in Petrograd have been occupied by Bolshevists, the archives seized and the occupants arrested on a charge of espionage. The Bolshevists have issued a decree that all persons found in possession of arms will be shot on the spot.

LONDONERS HEAR TALK ON JAPANESE INDUSTRY

Tokio Attache Says Normally Trade Has Nothing To Fear From Competition

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 9.—Addressing the London Chamber of Commerce Mr. E. T. Crowe, the Commercial Attache at Tokio, expressed the opinion that the danger of Japanese competition was not serious provided Great Britain soon returned to normal conditions; that her output was not unreasonably curtailed and profiteering was checked.

The fact that Japanese industry was in a state of transition from cottages to the factory must affect the quality of her goods for some time. Japanese labor was plentiful but not very efficient. Roughly, Japanese labor cost 14/- for males and 9/4 for females for a seventy-hour week but wages in Japan must advance owing to the rising cost of living.

Comparatively little research work was being done in Japan and most of the industries are still in the imitative (? imitative) stage. Japan had practically no iron mines and depended on foreign sources for nearly all her important raw materials; her coal was very expensive and her means of communication defective. Japan's goods were inferior in quality but considerably cheaper than British goods and, generally, were non-competitive as they were of a different grade but the demands of the world would be so large for many years that there should be plenty of room for both British and Japanese goods. He did not doubt Great Britain would retain her position as the greatest trading nation in the world.

PEKING URGED TO REOPEN SHANGHAI CONFERENCE

Tsen Chun-hsuan Sends Peply To Message And Advises Sending Of Delegates

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, July 10.—The Government is in receipt of a reply to its recent telegram to Tsen Chun-hsuan of the Canton Military Government regarding the question of peace between the North and the South. The Government's message to Tsen requested that the "Eight Demands" of the South be either modified or withdrawn and that the two governments arrive at some definite basis for a peace agreement before the Shanghai Conference be reopened.

Tsen's reply informs the Peking Government that the Eight Demands, having been submitted to the last Shanghai conference, were now out of the hands of the Southern Government and could only come up for discussion, modification or settlement at Shanghai. At the same time Tsen requested the North to send a full delegation to Shanghai as soon as it could possibly appoint suitable men and get them down there. In making this request Tsen pointed out that the Southern delegation had been at Shanghai for some time and that the failure of the Northern delegation to put in its appearance had been the only thing to hold up the reopening of the conference. He added that, as soon as the North had sent its representatives to Shanghai he would despatch Mr. Feng Yao-tsin thither to represent him and act as go-between between the two delegations. The time was ripe, Tsen thought, for reconciliation between the North and the South, and the North should not waste precious moments in temporising.

While this exchange of messages between the Northern and Southern governments has been going on the Peking parliament has furthered the prospects of a settlement of the parliamentary question by arriving at the informal decision that the present session of parliament cannot be extended beyond August 12. Indeed, the Anfu Club is so certain that parliament will go on a holiday then, never to reconvene, that it is already making preparations the next parliamentary elections. Headquarters of the party are to be established in all of China's provinces excepting the five which are under the control of the Southern Government, and a campaign fund of $2,500,000 is to be collected all over the country and divided among the provincial headquarters according to their political importance.

PEKING TO PARTICIPATE IN NEW RAILWAY LOAN

Will Take Part In Financing For Reconstruction Of The Trans-Siberian Line

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, July 10.—The Central Government has decided to participate with the United States, Great Britain, France and Japan in the loan for the reconstruction of the Trans-Siberian Railway and has replied in this sense to the recent inquiry made at the Foreign Office by the Japanese Minister. China's share in this loan will be G.$600,000, and the Government is making arrangements to raise this money itself rather than to borrow it from one of the Powers.

Lord Milner Speaks Of Empire's Future

Must Be Partnership Between United Kingdom And The Dominions, He Says

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 9.—At a luncheon given by the Commercial Committee of the House of Commons today, Lord Milner, proposing the toast of "The Overseas Dominions," said that the only possibility for a continuance of the British Empire was on a basis of an absolutely equal partnership between the United Kingdom and the Dominions. Undoubtedly the working out in practice of that partnership would be one of the most complicated tasks of statesmanship but there was no other line on which the solution could be found.

It was quite certain that the Dominions in future would be independently represented in international affairs. Foreign countries must accept the position. The Dominions might be members of the League of Nations side-by-side with the United Kingdom but at the same time they were entitled and intended to be members of the British League of Nations inside the Empire.

Funeral Procession Of Mme. Hu Today

Body Of Mother Of Minister To Paris To Be Escorted To Guild

The funeral procession for the late Madame Hu, mother of Mr. Hu Wei-teh, Chinese Minister to Paris, and Mr. Hu Wei-yien, Customs Superintendent of Hankow, will take place this afternoon. The cortege will leave the residence of the deceased, Chung Yi Alleyway, Elgin Road, at 2 o'clock and proceed to the Huchow Guild, Chapei, where the coffin will be placed temporarily.

Mr. Hu, the Chinese Minister, will not be able to return to China until early in October. Cable instructions from Peking have allowed him six months within which to mourn for the loss of his mother.

London Paper Urges Japan To Take Stand

Should Define Intentions In Regard To Treaties Of 1915, Times Advises

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 9.—The Times, in a leader today, suggests that Japan could allay the anxiety of the Chinese immediately and strengthen her position throughout the whole world still more and finally disarm the suspicion and jealousy of which she complains by spontaneously and in a generous and conciliatory spirit defining her intentions with regard to the more contentious and more obscure clauses of the treaties of 1915.

In Sunday's paper it was said that Dr. W. Hopkyn Rees, who is taking a petition signed by Chinese students to Premier Lloyd George, is a native of the same town as Mr. Lloyd George. The Rev. C. E. Darwent of the Union Church yesterday telephoned THE CHINA PRESS to convey the information that this was untrue, as Mr. Lloyd George was born in Manchester, not in Wales, and Dr. Rees in a village near Swansea, which is in Wales. It was several years after his birth that Mr. Lloyd George was taken to Criccieth in Wales. Also Mr. Darwent pointed out that Mr. Lloyd George was born in 1863 and Dr. Rees in 1858 or 1859, and then it is doubtful whether they were childhood friends.

PEKING IS IMPATIENT AT GOVERNMENT'S DELAY

Memorandum Demands Decision In Matters Of Foreign And Domestic Policy

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, July 11.—The people of the capital are growing impatient over the indecision of the government in matters of foreign and domestic policy and the delay in forming a cabinet.

A memorandum was sent to the government recently by the Peking Students' Union containing three questions: first, is it true that the government has instructed the delegation in Paris to enter into direct negotiations with the Japanese representatives regarding the return of Tsingtau? If not, what is the course to be pursued by the government regarding peace negotiations? Secondly, does the government intend to redeem or abrogate the secret treaties with foreign Powers? Finally, why does the government in its mandate of July 7 mention the Japanese boycott as indicative of an anti-foreign movement? Does not the government realise that no anti-foreign movement exists?

The general curiosity about conditions in Paris and in government circles here was little appeased by the mandate issued last night purporting to explain the reasons for not signing the treaty. The people are more interested in what action the government will take in regard to the Shantung decision and to making peace with Germany and Austria, and are not willing, as the mandate suggests, to leave these matters in the hands of the government.

At the cabinet meeting yesterday, the mandate concerning the Paris treaty and the affairs of Kirin were discussed. Only three ministers and two vice-ministers attended the meeting. The cabinet is pretty well disintegrated now. Since the Anfu party withdrew their approval of Chow Shumou's cabinet, no action has been taken in the forming of a new cabinet. Mr. Kung Hsin-chan, since his post is temporary, can determine no definite policy. The Minister of Agriculture and the acting-Minister of Foreign Affairs both continue their absence on leave.

City Celebrates French Holiday

sion of a tyrannous rule," said Mr. Simms in giving the toast. "Henceforth it will also commemorate the delivery of France from another tyranny which threatened her very existence as a free nation, the tyranny of German militarism.

"What strikes us most today is the great contrast between this 14th of July and the same day last year. Then Paris was prepared for eventualities in case the Germans succeeded in establishing their line near enough to bombard the city. Big Bertha some 40 miles away was already heralding the onward rush of the boche armies. It was indeed a solemn National Fete Day for France and the whole world. Freedom from German domination hung, as it were, in the balance. A mighty struggle was going on between German preparedness and French genius; between the undoubted courage of a desperate enemy making his final effort to break through, and the heroic resistance and sublime courage of the Allied forces who had to stem the mighty thrust and at the psychological moment carry out that brilliant counter stroke which turned what looked like a German triumph into the greatest defeat the world has ever witnessed. It was a great example of the truth of that French saying 'nous reculons pous mieux sauter.'

"Today France is safe and the world is safe, at any rate from the menace of German militarism. After four and a half years of martyrdom France rejoices that her sacrifices have not been in vain, that her liberty is assured, and we rejoice with her because we know that a free France means a free Europe.

"Another striking contrast is the terms of peace which Germany, had she been victorious, intended imposing on France and the terms which the Allies have imposed on Germany. The Allies have still a common purpose, that is to see that the terms of the treaty are carried out in their entirety. There must be no weakening. We must not allow any consideration to swerve us from our duty to those who have sacrificed their lives for us, to those who have to go through life maimed and broken in health, to those who have had the good fortune to come through safe and sound. Already there is talk of the peace treaty being unsound because it offends the principles for which we were fighting. Gentlemen, as Mr. Wilden once remarked, we were fighting for our skins. We do not ask an armed robber to come to our next dinner party. If we catch him we put him in jail. The Allies, however, have not so treated Germany. She remains free subject to two things—guarantees for her future good behavior and a moderate amount of reparation for the colossal losses for which she is responsible. The Allies still think Germany will redeem her soul and they have given her a chance to do so.

"The Allies have also a common purpose in seeing Russia once more on her feet but a free country. Now that Germany's policy of aggression in the West has come to grief she will surely look to the East for the development of a similar policy. The great safeguard is a strong Russia. We do not forget Russia's help at the beginning of the war, and we cannot withhold our admiration for Admiral Koltchak and his band of workers in their efforts to liberate their country from the yoke of Bolshevism. The Allies must possess the goodwill of the Russian people.

Co-operation Spirit Of Age

"Gentlemen, the aftermath of war is always a most critical time. It was a herculean effort to switch the world from a peace footing to a war footing. It will require immense work and patience on the part of the nations to settle down once more to their ordinary avocations and devote themselves to making the world a better and not a worse place to live in. We have had five years of destruction. We want many years of reconstruction. Capital and labor must cease wrangling and pull together. Co-operation for the good of mankind is the spirit of the age.

"In thanking the French members of the Club for their hospitality," Mr. Simms concluded. "We would offer you, Mr. Wilden, and members of the French community, our heartiest congratulations on this historic day which sees France once more enjoying that peace for which she fought so magnificently. The bond of friendship between France and Great Britain has been cemented by our common sacrifices into a closer union, which, with the warm friendship of America constitutes a solid foundation on which to found a lasting peace."

Mr. Wilden responded to the toast and in doing so struck a happy reminiscent vein in which he told of his first experiences at the Shanghai Club twenty years ago. He concluded with a toast to the everlasting union of Great Britain and France.

Mr. Jamieson, Acting British Consul-General, then addressed the assembly in French and he was followed by Mr. D. Siffert, Consul-General for Belgium, who spoke with feeling of the victory of freedom over oppression, as symbolised yesterday morning when the French flag was raised over the former German Garden. Other speeches were made by Dr. W. T. Findley, president of the American Club, and Lieut.-Commander K. F. Smith of the U.S. Navy. During the proceedings the Marseillaise, God Save the King and the Star Spangled Banner were sung.

Decorations Are Brilliant

Allied flags were flown in both the French Concession and the International Settlement and all French firms in the Settlement decorated their stores and hongs, many vessels in the harbor dressed ship.

The Credit Foncier d'Extreme Orient building on Nanking Road with its flags and bunting by day and its brilliant electrical display at night made an imposing spectacle. All the municipal buildings in the Concession and many hongs were outlined in electric lights last night and the French Park and Cercle Sportif Francais were brilliant.

From Avenue Joffre to the French Club, Route Voyron, was arched with red and yellow Chinese lanterns. Thousands of lanterns were strung in the park, arching the walks and converging to the band stand which stood out in the center with its outline of red lanterns.

Victory arches at both entrances to the park, at Avenue Dubail and Route Vallon, were illuminated and hundreds of lanterns were hung along the road at the eastern border of the park.

The French Club was outlined in incandescents, strings of electric lights made the tennis courts at the west end of the club garden as light as day, while red, white and blue lanterns and electric lights were used profusely in the decorative scheme for the building.

CASTORIA
for Infants and Children.
Don't Poison Baby.

FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have paregoric or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and a few drops too many will produce the sleep from which there is no waking. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labeling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without you or your physician know of what it is composed. Castoria does not contain narcotics.

Bleachers To Be Built Behind First Base; Arrangements For Games Completed

Final arrangements for the coming baseball series when Shanghai meets the Navy, 15th U. S. Infantry of Tientsin and the 4th Philippines Infantry, were made at a meeting of the executive committee of the Baseball Club yesterday afternoon. The 15th Infantry and the Filipinos are expected here from Tientsin on Thursday night.

Additional seating accommodation for the series will be provided in left and right fields. Extra bleachers will be built behind first base and there will be seats along the left field line.

Doyle, The China Press; C. H. Green, Mustard and Company; T. B. Brown, Shanghai Life Insurance Company; American Club, Astor House, J. B. Quiros Beats Elcano, 4-2

In a game featured principally by Becker's hitting the ball players from the Quiros trimmed the Elcano nine 4 to 2 yesterday afternoon.

The Quiros batterman compiled a total of three safe bingles in four times to bat and also stole two bases. The batteries were: Quiros—Flack and Becker; Elcano—Dougan and Woods.

Two Games This Week

Shanghai will play the U.S.S. Quiros at the Race Course tomorrow afternoon and a game will be arranged with the Elcano for Thursday. Both games are carded for five o'clock.

Few players showed up for practice yesterday but there will be a stiff workout today. Skull practice was held at the American Club last night and the players will get together again tonight to talk over matters.

Gill is due to pitch tomorrow afternoon with Scott working against the Elcano on Thursday. Porterfield has returned from Kuling and will be in left field. With Porterfield in left, Scott or Gill in center and Smith in right, the locals have a pretty decent outer defense for the coming series. Cooper has strengthened the infield and the two games this week, a couple of stiff practice sessions and the skull practice should put the Shanghai team in shape.

Locals Beat Elcano

Shanghai defeated the Elcano Sunday afternoon by a 5-2 score in a slow game punctuated here and there by horrible baseball. Scott and Hoffman were the worst offenders, the latter attempting to steal third with the bases full. Bradley's single with two on in the sixth and Scott's three bagger were the features.

Charity Cup Competition

Q. M. Sergt. Rose Wins Trophy

Q. M. Sergt. W. T. Rose, S.V.C. Staff, won the Shanghai Charity Cup outright in the fifth competition for the trophy held Sunday at the Rifle Range under the auspices of the Shanghai Rifle Association.

Forty-five competitors, of fifty-eight entries, took part in the shoot, which was held under good weather conditions, except for rather poor light at the start.

The proceeds of the five competitions for the cup realised the sum of $328 which has been donated to the Blue Cross Fund of Great Britain and the Red Star of America.

Wherein Is Applied A Cure To The Curer

Purveyor Of 'Anti-Opium' Pellets Draws Fine For Hitting The Pipe

The signboard outside Hoo Maunoen's shop on Seward Road proclaimed that within were dispensed pills for curing the opium habit.

However, there are a lot of non-superstitious policemen in Hongkew who put no faith in signs. A couple of them visited Hoo's place and found a Buddhist priest and another party smoking opium in the back room. The other party left by a window. They also found quantities of raw and prepared opium and developed a strong suspicion that the so-advertised anti-opium pellets were a potent mixture of opium and morphia.

The shopkeeper appeared, along with the priest, in the Mixed Court yesterday and stated that notwithstanding the fact that he was engaged in the business of trying to break the opium habit he didn't use the cure himself. The pipes and opium seized were for his personal use only. The priest said he had been having a little trouble with his heart and merely dropped in to borrow a pipeful of relief.

The court made Hoo a $30 or 30 days' proposition and ordered opium, paraphernalia and pills confiscated. The priest also got the option—three dollars or the same number of days.

AMERICANS IN SHANTUNG CABLE TO U. S. SENATOR

Protest Against Ratification Of Treaty Giving Japan Former German Rights

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, July 10.—The American citizens in Tsinanfu despatched a cablegram yesterday to Senator Hiram Johnson in Washington protesting against the ratification of the peace treaty which includes the clause surrendering German rights in Shantung to Japan. The message reads as follows:

"Paris decision Shantung question aggravating Japanese arrogant aggression. Treaty proposals unjust to China, antagonistic to American ideals, mean closing open door, imperilling peace of Far East. American citizens of Tsinan, Shantung, therefore, strongly protest against ratification of Peace Treaty in present form."

The difference in feeling between foreigners in China and their home representatives may be indicated in the fact that one hears few private persons of any nation of the west, resident in China, who advocate China's signing. Expression of opinion from America also would indicate approval of the China delegates refusal to sign. The President of China, however, wants to know the official opinion on the subject, and so has delegated Wang Ta-hsieh, former Minister to Japan, now of the Liang Chi-chiao party, to visit the foreign legations in Peking and find out what their advice is for China's next step in foreign diplomacy.

MEXICO IS POINTED OUT AS AMERICA'S PROBLEM

Speaker Gillett Of House Stirs The Pan American Conference By Frank Talk

A BAR TO GOOD RELATIONS

Vice President Also Speaks At Opening Session—Wilson Sends A Message

Washington, June 2.—With Vice President Marshall asserting that the future peace of the world might depend on the establishment of a real working comradeship between the republics of the Western Hemisphere, and with Speaker Gillett urging that it was the duty of the republics to do something to end present conditions in Mexico, the second Pan-American Congress opened here today. Twenty-one republics and fully 800 delegates and visitors are present.

This message from President Wilson was read to the delegates:

"The President desires me to convey to you the following message: Please greet the members of the Second Pan-American Conference in my name and convey to them the following message:

"'It is with genuine regret that I find myself unable to attend the conference and greet you in person. I am sure that the members of the Government who are in Washington will make you feel abundantly welcome, but I should have wished to express that welcome in person. We attach the highest importance to this conference. Our hearts are set upon a perfect understanding between the Americans and the development of relations which will be mutually beneficial not only, but will contribute to the sort of relations which promote peace and good-will as well as prosperity. Pray accept my most cordial good wishes for the success of the conference.' LANSING."

In this speech Mr. Gillett said in part:

"It seems to me that it would be unfortunate if in such a Congress as this no public allusion was made to what must be in the mind of every man—the attitude of Mexico. Security is essential for trade expansion. No merchant will seek for profits when his principal is not safe. To get protection from either a regular or a bandit Government only by paying for it is not civilised.

"For a nation to refuse protection to its own citizens located in another country or to advise them to flee therefrom is not dignified. For some years the propety and often the lives of foreigners in Mexico have been unsafe, and as a necessary corollory foreign trade, which this conference is called to promote, is most precarious. I do not wish to open any political question or throw any apple of discord, but it seems to me a Congress, gathered to confer on the commercial possibilities of this hemisphere, ought not to refuse to consider what we all know is the greatest impediment existing to satisfactory relations.

"Mexico stretches over vast areas in the very middle of our hemispere, and has enormous trade possibilites. They can be made most enriching for her and helpful for us all. The United States chances to be most interested because of contact and investment. We have towards her no feeling of hosility, or lust of conqueror. But I think our business interests and our patriotic instincts, like yours, wish established there conditions which would restore to Mexico the prosperity she has lost, and give to foreign commerce the security to which it is entitled. Such a consummation would be of advantage to us all, but its great blessing would go to Mexico."

Vice President Marshall said in part:

"Whether we shall or shall not have [illegible] for me to

Secretary of State, the Chilean Ambassador and the Bolivian Ministers, deans of their respective ranks among the Latin-American diplomats in Washington, and the President of the United States Chamber of Commerce were other speakers.

Mexican Ambassador Speaker Gillett's Talk

Washington, June 3.—The address delivered by Speaker Gillett of the House of Representatives, before the second Pan-American Commercial Conference yesterday, in which he alluded to Mexico as a plague spot which must be cured if proper relations were to be established between the two Continents of the Western Hemisphere, created a sensation in Central and South American diplomatic circles today and brought from Dr. Juan B. Rojo, counsellor and Charge de'Affaires of the Mexican Embassy, a rejoinder in which he accused Mr. Gillett of violating the hospitality of the conference by injecting politics into the proceedings.

There were other developments which attracted much attention, and one of them was the failure of Henry P. Fletcher, American Ambassador to Mexico, who was scheduled to preside at this afternoon's session of the conference, to put in an appearance. It was reported at the conference rooms that Mr. Fletcher had requested that he be permitted to withdraw.

The protest against Mr. Gillett's address was made by Dr. Rojo both to the State Department and the Pan-American Conference. He also denied that Mr. Gillett's speech was founded upon fact. Dr. Rojo's statement follows:

"Yesterday I protested before Acting Secretary of State Phillips, Acting President of the Governing Board of the Pan-American Union, against the remarks made by Speaker Gillett.

"I considered that the Speaker violated the rules of the conference, as politics were excluded from the discussions, and I was surprised that he accepted the hospitality of the Pan-American Union to offend one of the states of this union.

"The statement made by Mr. Gillett that Mexico is the only obstacle to international commerce is not based on facts. The statistics available at the Pan-American Union show that the commerce between Mexico and the United States increases every day and also that Mexico's commerce with Central and South America is beginning and firn. steps.

"I should have desired that the Speaker had expressed his ideas with more frankness as regards the procedure he suggested for remedying the ills of Mexico. I interpreted his idea as meaning intervention in the internal affairs of Mexico.

"This statement was presented by me to the acting President of the Governing Board of the Pan-American Union in order to make formal the verbal protest that I made to Acting Secretary of State Phillips.

Dr. Rojo delivered an address before the Conference today but refrained at that time from any reference to what Mr. Gillett had said. When Dr. Rojo completed his remarks, the other delegates were asked several times if they had any questions to ask about Mexico, but no one interrogated the speaker.

Hangchow News Notes

(China Press Correspondence)

Hangchow, July 11.—The Kiangnan Conference of the Students' Young Women's Christian Association has just closed its ten-day session which was held in the buildings of the Union Girls' School. One hundred and twenty-five delegates, including leaders, have been in attendance and twenty-five schools have been represented. By those who have been accustomed to attending this annual gathering of girl students the conference is regarded as the best yet held in this region. It is thought that the recent students' movement, in which all the girls have a part, has galvanised the students into a new and finer attitude toward everything, and that this was one of the factors in producing the fine spirit which marked the conference throughout.

Day before yesterday the doors were formally opened of the new Isolation Hospital built in connection with the C.M.S. Hospital here. Dr. Main presided. Addresses were made by representatives of the Military and Civil Governors and of the Commissioner of Education, and by Dr. Lee of the Military Hospital, Mr. Wong Sing-san, Commissioner of Foreign Affairs, and Mr. Zun Sin-beh, President of the Lawyers' Association. The hospital occupies a hilly side north of the Needle Pagoda and adjoining the Leper Hospital. Its cost, including furnishings, has been $12,000 of which $5,600 was contributed by the Military and Civil Governors. It will accommodate 24 beds. Dr. Main during his 39 years in Hangchow has been preeminently a pioneer and this isolation hospital is only one more "first institution of its kind" established in Hangchow by him.

In spite of a driving rain a large audience attended the cornerstone laying ceremony of the new Y. M. C. A. building. The audience included leading Christians of the city and representatives of the officials. This building which with furnishings will cost G.$80,000, is rapidly progressing under the superintendance of Mr. R. L. Creighton.

The present movement in China has not resulted in an anti-foreign feeling in Hangchow. The Zun Chiar Zive (International Goodfellowship Club) has held two meetings during the past week—one in the rooms of the Bankers' Association and one in the handsome quarters of the Silk Manufacturers' Guild. The society organised last Fall is an attempt to cultivate better relations between the peoples of China and other countries. It does not include any officials in its membership and the relations between its members are strikingly informal and spontaneous. Even toward Japan local sentiment does not seem to be violently hostile. One significant expression of this is the way in which the cry "Boycott Japanese Goods" gave way within a few days to the slogan, "Increase Native Manufactures." Undoubtedly Japanese produced goods are not nearly so much in demand as they were before the present movement started but more thought is being given to ways of stimulating native industry rather than to boycotting Japanese products.

Public opinion in Hangchow has followed the Municipal by-law to muzzle the press in Shanghai with close and discriminating interest. Aparently the Chinese papers have interpreted the 'effort as a sign of toryism and reaction, for it is generally interpreted as such by the Chinese here.

The schools closed by the authorities at the time of the student strike are planning to open early in order to make up the time lost. Some of the schools plan to open the middle of August. It will be interesting to observe whether the action of the authorities in closing the schools has not stimulated student activity rather than suppressed it.

Hangchow is having the heaviest rainfall it has had for several years and the early rice crop is threatened. The prospects point to a short crop and high prices.

FEELING AGAINST JAPAN EVIDENT IN SHANTUNG

Local Industries Are Being Developed In Order To Push Boycott

(China Press Correspondence)

Taianfu, Shantung, July 11.—It is interesting to see how widespread is the feeling against Japan. Even in the remote places away from the railroad the people understand the situation and are determined to push the boycott to the bitter end. There is increasing mention of the development of local industries preparing goods to take the place of former imports from Japan. A report has now come that a poor Japanese appeared at a village near this city reporting that he was trying to get to his brother in Shanghai. He seemed to be almost starved and ate greedily of the food given him; he could not speak Chinese but wrote the characters readily and so was able to make his wants known. There is difference of opinion as to who the person may be but it is interesting to note that the Chinese helped their enemy when in dire need. On the other hand we learn that recent visitors to the grave of Confucius have seen Japanese turned away from the Confucian grave and temple and not allowed to enter.

The cottages on this mountain are well filled with summer visitors and a much larger number would come if permission to build could be secured. Many transients have also been here to see the sights, among this number the Misses Clough and Hanson, artists from New York City who spent a few days sketching on the mountain recently. There was a grand celebration of the Fourth of July with sports, picnic, dinner an interesting program of music and an address by the Rev. C.E. Scott, D.D., of Tsinanfu.

The farmers are happy with good crop prospects as the rains have come in time to save the beans and millet. The price of grain is the lowest for several years. An unusual number of theaters seem to be in evidence as indications of the good times and consequent rejoicing of the people.

IMPORTANT NOTICES

Mr. Edward S. Little commenced for us our business in China nearly 20 years ago, and has been our General Manager from its inception until now. He has made of it a great success, and has managed and developed it entirely to our satisfaction. Our relations with him have throughout been of the most cordial nature.

Mr. Little has just undergone a serious operation, which, coupled with an inability on his part to agree that certain alterations in the policy of conducting our business in China were to the advantage of the Company, has led him to place his resignation in our hands, which we have reluctantly accepted. We have arranged personal terms with Mr. Little which are quite agreeable both to him and to us, and it is a matter of satisfaction to us that, though no longer actively directing our business, his experience and advice will be at our service.

It is with deep regret we learn that rumours of a nature contrary to the actual facts, have obtained a wide circulation concerning Mr. Little and his relations with us. We not only have no sympathy with them, but resent as much as he does their existence. Mr. Little has, as we have said, rendered us the best and most efficient services for which we thank him and which we highly appreciate. We have expressed our practical appreciation in the terms offered Mr. Little by us and accepted by him, which though changing our relations, do not sever them.

By Order of the Board of Directors,
J. H. GOLD,
Director.

Northwich, June 30th, 1919.

BRUNNER, MOND & CO., LIMITED, ENGLAND

Mr. Edward S. Little having retired from the position of General Manager for Messrs. Brunner, Mond & Co., Limited, in China, the Directors have decided to place the management and direction of the Company's affairs in China and Japan under one control and for this purpose have appointed Mr. P. H. Wootton (the Company's Representative in Japan), General Manager and Mr. Percy Fowler, Assistant General Manager for the Far East. Mr. Fowler will be directly in charge of the Company's business in China with residence in Shanghai, but his responsibilities have been extended and now embrace the Empire of Japan.

By Order of the Board of Directors,
J. G. NICHOLSON,
Director.

With reference to the above Notices issued by Messrs. Brunner, Mond & Co., Limited, I hereby confirm that I have retired from all participation in the direction of the Company's business. I continue to reside in the Company's house No. 30 Gordon Road, Shanghai, to which address alone communications to me should be sent.

Banking Service with AMERICA —direct and personal

EXPORTERS or importers now engaged in, or thinking of, trade with America would do well to consider not only the special nature of our facilities, but also the personal interest we take in every one of our customers' transactions.

First of all, we offer direct banking service—without intermediary dealings, or unnecessary delays.

Equally important is our personal service. Every transaction is followed through, both here and in America, by our own representatives with a personal interest, the value of which is evident in the service rendered.

May we talk with you about America?

'HIKE' FROM CHICAGO TO NEW YORK COSTS $400

Club Men Who Lost Bet On Mayoralty Election Say It Was Worth It

New York, June 2.—W. B. Martin, a broker, and W. B. Sage, a realty promoter, who left the University Club in Chicago at noon April 15 to walk here to pay an election bet, are recuperating at the Biltmore. Despite their long jaunt of more than 1,050 miles, which they made in twenty-five-mile laps, both men declared themselves in better physical shape than when they left Chicago, forty-one days ago. Martin wore out five pairs of shoes on the journey; one pair lasted Sage all the way.

Martin and Sage were ardent partisans in the last mayoralty election. Sage supported "Bob" Sweitzer, Cook County's Clerk, for the position Mayor Thompson was re-elected to and Martin was an ardent lieutenant of Maclay Hoyne, the Illinois State's Attorney, who also was after Mayor Thompson's job. Each talked about his candidate so much about the Yale and University clubs in Chicago that it was agreed between them that the loser was to walk to this city. It's only a matter of history that both Hoyne and Sweitzer were defeated and Martin and Sage had to make the long jaunt as a result. The trip cost each about $400, expended mostly for food.

SPECTRE OF BOLSHEVISM IS STALKING IN FRANCE

Its Influence Is Responsible For Wave Of Strikes Sweeping Over Country

By Lincoln Eyre
(New York World)

Paris, June 6.—That Bolshevism is at the bottom of the plague of strikes now sweeping over France is no longer open to doubt. This does not mean that the movement is inspired by Russian or Hungarian Soviets, whereby close on 500,000 men and women in the Paris district and the Pas de Calais mining country have quit work, but it means simply that strike leaders have an establishment of Communism as the goal of the working classes and not merely their economic betterment.

The revolutionary rather than the evolutionary character of the agitation is recognised by all the press, conservative and radical alike. Measures reminiscent of May Day have been taken in Paris by the Government. Troops have already been stationed in some of the metropolitan subway stations and large bodies of soldiers are held in readiness in the suburbs.

No Violence So Far

So far there has been no violence beyond individual encounters with the police. It is generally felt, however, that the longer the strikes last the greater will become the danger of friction and bloodshed, particularly in view of the political background of the situation.

From Toulon come veiled but ominous reports of Bolshevism among the sailors on board the French warships. It may be recalled that four naval vessels on which the red flag was hoisted in the Black Sea when the Russian Reds were marching on Odessa were sent back to Toulon. The nature of the disciplinary penalties imposed upon the mutinous crews of those ships is to be the subject of debate, initiated by Socialists, in the Chamber of Deputies next Friday.

Marcel Cachin, who is scheduled to be the Government's chief heckler on the occasion, writes as follows in L'Humanite, the Socialist organ: "All the newspapers remark the extreme nervousness of the general public in the last few days. Strikes are expanding and multiplying and there are repeated mutinies among the soldiers and sailors. The spectacle of the powerlessness of our rulers to emerge from war and establish peace and restore order is presented to the view of men and must influence their minds. All these things constitute a state of affairs properly termed revolutionary."

The Deputy goes on to emphasise the world-wide character of industrial, economic and political unrest. In his argument he apparently means to lead up to the international labor demonstrations planned in Milan by Ramsay Macdonald of the British Socialist Party and Jean Longuet, who is known as Lenin's Ambassador to France and who has been in consultation with the Italian Reds.

Strong Action Demanded

There is reason to expect that the Macdonald-Longuet scheme will bear fruit in the near future, possibly in the form of simultaneously quasi-general strikes. The French conservative papers demand strong governmental action against the "fomenters of rebellion," as men like Longuet and Cachin are characterised. Alfred Capus says in Le Figaro:

"It is quite possible, unless the Government is in position to check the movement, that we shall find ourselves on the edge, I won't say of a proletarian dictatorship, but of an attempt at such dictatorship, a sort of rehearsal."

L'Homme Libre, Premier Clemenceau's paper, says: "Nobody can shut his eyes to maneuvers which tend to put the just claims of the labor world to uses strictly political maneuvers not ably conducted—in the admissible ambitions of certain parties."

SHANGHAI, JULY 15, 1919

The Need For A New American School

A campaign has begun to raise funds for a new American school in Shanghai. The need for such a school is too generally recognised to require much elaboration. The American community in Shanghai is increasing in leaps. American families are coming to Shanghai with the view of settling here. Young men are coming who will marry and raise families here. The happiness and success of their stay, in fact their stay itself, will depend largely upon the educational facilities that can be provided for their children. At present those facilities are markedly inadequate. The existing American school was planned and built on the basis of an American population of a few hundred, such as there was a few years ago. But there are now in Shanghai nearly two thousand Americans and in China six thousand. That increase must be provided for.

Our interest in this is more than individual. It is communal and even national. The prosperity of the American population in China, the success of American enterprise in China is considerably dependent upon

Magna Charta Of Childhood

By Williams L. Chenery

For the first time in history the children's magna charta is being drafted. At the request of the President of the United States, men and women from America and from many nations associated with us in war have been called together to pool their experience and their wisdom in this great undertaking. Throughout the breadth of this land a series of conferences is now in progress. Out of these deliberations the great charter of childhood is expected to emerge.

Under the leadership of Miss Julia Lathrop, chief of the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor, representatives of six foreign nations are consulting with leading American authorities in order that statesmen may deal rightly with all children. One after another many of the great cities of this country are being visited. From these peripatetic discussions are being wrested principles which may assure a sturdier citizenry among all free nations. The purpose of this venture was first of all to place at the service of the United States the lessons which the world had wrung from the bitterness of the war. Already, however, material has been accumulated which ought to lay the basis for a new international opinion in matters affecting children.

Before the war it seemed possible for statesmen to ignore the existence of children. What happened to the millions of young people of every great nation was, prior to August, 1914, of slight interest to Governments. Before the great war, it is perhaps safe to say that no Cabinet meeting of any great power had at any time devoted its full attention to the national problems raised by the very existence of children. Local and state authorities, it is true, planned more or less well for the education of the many, for the support of the pauper few, and for the segregation of those considered dangerous. But statesmen had small enthusiasm for such things. In that complacent epoch which ended less than five years ago, national responsibility for children, like so many other of the obligations of civilised Governments, was ignored.

Every Government knows now that such neglect is no longer compatible with national safety either in war or in peace. Military mobilisation and the great test of industrial efficiency during the war revealed weaknesses appallingly vast. Neglect, it was perceived, was silently doing damage hardly less great than enemy invasion. Because of this realisation, and not because of any new-found tenderness for children, Governments generally have begun to give serious thought to childhood. That is the mood which lies behind the effort now being made through 14 years, twenty-two cases of illness were reported during their last school year, while during the first year of the work the same children reported forty-one cases of illness serious enough to keep them in bed.

Age alone is moreover a poor test of whether the future citizen is ripe for work. Following somewhat the suggestion of the great education act by means of which Herbert A. L. A. L. Fisher, the present Minister of Education, hopes to shove Great Britain a long step forward, it is proposed that all children between the ages of seven and eighteen be required to attend school for nine months a year either upon full or part time. Those children between sixteen and eighteen who have completed the eighth grade and who are legally employed should be required to attend day continuation schools eight hours weekly. Those, however, who have not graduated from the so-called grammar schools should continue full time at school until they are 18 years old. Finally, it is urged that children be not permitted to go to work until they have been examined by public health physicians and found to be physically fit for work.

Other kindred standards, including one holding that the wages paid children beyond the stage of learners be at least equal to the minimum essential to the "necessary cost of proper living," are offered.

But the protection of children against the known evil of employment which will stunt their development as citizens of a self-governing republic is only a part of any program which plans for the well-being of the nation. After all, the greatest of all national losses is that of the infancy of the country. Poverty and disease, ignorance and neglect, silently accumulate losses beside which even the invasions of barbaric hordes seem less horrible. The work of any people having a statesmanlike concern about child life consists, therefore, in assuring to all parents, not merely to the prosperous and to the well informed, that their children will be safely born. Accordingly a set of principles, designed to safeguard the lives and the health of women during childbirth and of their offspring, has been drawn up and is now being discussed throughout the country.

The point of view of the average woman confronted by this great crisis was set forth eloquently by Mrs. Eleanor Barton of England. Mrs. Barton was the spokeswoman of the Woman's Co-operative Guild. This organisation of some 32,000 wives of British workingmen has been largely influential in the passage of the acts of Parliament which provide maternity benefits for mothers and also public nursing for mothers and

The Future Of The Dependent Peoples

By Silas Bent
(In World's Work, New York)

No provision in the treaty handed to the German plenipotentiaries at Versailles is more significant than the mandatory system it sets up, by which the tutelage of small nations not yet strong enough politically to stand alone is entrusted to Great Britain, America, and Japan, with the lion's share of responsibility resting on Anglo-Saxon shoulders.

In this treaty the mandates are applied for the former German colonial possessions; formost of the European territory exacted from the defeated enemy will be handed over in justice to its real owners, and on it will be erected states strong enough to stand by themselves. Part of it will be taken from Austria. And the treaty to be presented later to Turkey will make provision for the races formerly under Ottoman subjection in Asia Minor. For those states mandates will be necessary, as in the case of Armenia and Palestine, and it is safe to assume that they will be largely in the hands of America and Great Britain. France is likely to assume her part of the duty, perhaps equally with Japan.

Great Britain and her dependencies are to administer all Germany's former colonies except the German Pacific islands north of the equator, for which the mandate will be held by Japan, and Shantung, which Japan is to govern for the present. Control of more than a million square miles of territory is taken thus from the hands of a people notoriously corrupt and brutal in ruling them. It has been the plea of German apologists and publicists that when the Iron Chancellor inaugurated weltpolitik in 1884, the nation was plunged into a function with which it was unfamiliar, and that its blunders were due in part to ignorance of the task, in part to the tyranny and dishonesty of individual officials. The crushing of the Arabs on the east coast of Africa and the long-drawn and cruel war against the Hottentots on the southwest coast belies the plea. Everywhere the German rule was intolerant and arrogant.

The mandatory system is interwoven with the League of Nation plan. Without the League it would be impossible. It derives its advantage from the supervision which the League makes possible. Backward countries are no longer to be the scene of back-door diplomacy working with Big Business in its worst sense. Their administration by stronger powers is to be in the open. The eyes of the world will watch to see that the Open Door is not closed, and that the governments set up are humane and clean.

In a sense, the Monroe Doctrine has given the United States the mandate, in the modern sense, for South America; and the provisions of the peace treaty which set up the mandatory system in other parts of the world may be called an amplification of that doctrine and a more specific application of it. It has worked well as regards South America, and there is no reason to suppose it will not work admirably under the jurisdiction of the League of Nations.

The Covenant of the League of Nations differentiates between the status of the weaker nations, and sets up three different kinds of mandatories for them: (1) New states, such as Armenia, will be provisionally recognised as independent, but will be subject to the advice and assistance from a mandatory or agent of the League, in whose selection they will be allowed to have a voice. But (2) communities like the German colonies in Africa must be administered by a mandatory acting for the League alone, and it is specially provided that there shall be equal opportunity for trade in those countries to all members of the League. This is an application of another political doctrine enunciated by an American statesman: The John Hay policy of the Open Door, a policy which, were it made a living actuality in all the backward countries of the world, would do more than any other thing to avert future wars. (3) The third class of communities specified in the Covenant are to be administrated under the laws of the mandatary nation as an integral part of its territories. Southwest Africa and the South Pacific islands are in the third class. In each case the degree of the mandatary's authority will be clearly defined and the nation acting in that capacity will be required to make an annual report to Geneva upon its stewardship.

When Prince Bismarck initiated the policy under which Germany extended her empire greedily and rapidly throughout the world, her African dependencies were not colonies in the strict sense of the word, because her only interest in that territory was to enrich German merchants. Togoland and Kamerun came under her domination in 1884 and her East African protectorate was gradually established between 1885 and 1890. The total area of her African possessions was considerably more than nine hundred thousand square mile and its native population more than ten millions. The area of her Pacific dependencies was nearly one hundred thousand square miles and the estimated population nearly half a million. In general these territories were harshly governed by Imperial Governors or Commissioners, appointed by the Kaiser.

No disposition has yet been made of Togoland and Kamerun. France and Great Britain are to make a joint recommendation at some future time regarding them. Kamerun was a German protectorate on the west coast of Africa, with an area of nearly two hundred thousand square miles, and a population of nearly four million blacks. It lies along the coast of the Bight of Biafra between the Campo and the Rio del Rey. Kings of the coast tribes attempted in 1884 to prevent the interior tribes from trading with Europeans, and this led to an appeal by foreign traders, first to England and then to Germany, to establish a protectorate. Great Britain declined, and Germany straightway annexed the territory. Togoland also lies on the coast of West Africa in upper Guinea, between the French colony of Dahomey on the east and the Gold Coast colony on the west. It has an area of nearly twenty thousand square miles, and a native population of more than two and a half millions. Germany established a protectorate at the same time she annexed Cameroon, the name of which she changed to Kamerun. Both regions are fertile and abound in tropical products. Germany found them particularly valuable because of their production of rubber and dye-woods. Both of them she governed brutally.

In disposing of German holdings in the Pacific Ocean south of the equator, the readjustment removes a long-standing source of friction. The Germans there have been extremely bad neighbors to Australia and New Zealand. For nearly half a century their occupancy has been a burning question in those countries. Before Germany achieved domination of the islands the natives appealed to the British Government to establish a protectorate over them, but it declined. Since the Germans seized them, they have been regarded in Australia and New Zealand as a continual menace. Within ten days after the outbreak of the war, New Zealand sent her first contingent of troops to take possession of the Samoas, and soon afterward Australian troops occupied New Guinea. Japanese forces took charge of the German islands north of the equator. These military movements foreshadowed the disposition subsequently to be made of them. Japan is to have the Marshalls, Carolines, and Mariannes (Ladrones). New Zealand will hold the mandate for the Samoas; Great Britain for Naura (Pleasant Island) and Australia for New Guinea.

Great Britain is to hold the mandate in German East Africa and the Union of South Africa the mandate for German South West Africa. In 1890 and 1891, by various treaties between England, France, Germany and Portugal, such portions of Africa as had not already been seized were partitioned among these four. This territorial division did not take the form of annexation in every case but was an agreement on "spheres of influence" within which each power reserved for itself paramount commercial privileges. The continent of Africa has been an international grab-bag.

The history of the maladministration of some of these territories is an unsavory record. In Nigeria, on the other hand, the British have made a case for benevolent imperialism. They have abolished slave trade, protected the natives and endeavored to preserve the native institutions. The local criminal law, for instance, was allowed to prevail instead of persisting in an attempt to substitute the English common law. The provincial courts were allowed to have jurisdiction over native offenders within their territories. The annexation has been highly advantageous to them.

The German possessions in China are to go to the Japanese under a special provision in that section of the treaty dealing with German rights outside of Europe. China will not be required to continue payment on the indemnity resulting from the Boxer Rebellion, and Germany must surrender to her German-owned buildings and other property except her consular establishments, with the exception of those in Shantung.

Germany not only seized Kiaochow, the city of Tsingtau, and a large part of the Province of Shantung in 1897, but compelled China to give her rich railroad and mining concessions, to run ninety-nine years, and the cables from Tsingtau to Shanghai and Chefoo. All these rights now pass to Japan, but with the understanding that Japan is to administer the province subject to the approval of the League of Nations and to restore it to China at some future date. This adjustment was a great disappointment to China. But no doubt the Council of Three was confident that the Japanese would act in good faith.

In Morocco, Germany loses all her political and commercial privileges. She is required to relinquish her interest in the State Bank, and her concessions will be sold at public auction. The Sherifian Empire has long been a center of European diplomatic disturbance and intrigue. Even in 1880 it became an international problem, and a convention was held at Madrid to discuss it. France, Spain, Great Britain and Germany were interested in conces-

A Changed London

It Has Become A City Of Hustle Now

By A Countryman

(London Chronicle)

When I was last in London for more than a passing hour, the season of peace was still on the knees of the gods. If there was no husbandry in heaven, and there were nights when moon and stars revelled in their tasteless, tactless defiance of Dora, there was at least husbandry in business thoroughfare and residential quarter, "their candles all were out." There was just enough glimmer downcast on deserted pavements by the blackened globes of electric standards to show that the few wayfarers were men and women of a certain age. Youth and light and good cheer had given a metropolis over to darkness which brought a sense of security, if not content.

Last week I returned to town—and change. From the time I struggled out of the terminus to the hour of joining the long queue at the booking office on the way home I found myself in an eager, pushing, busy, hustling crowd.

With the very brief, bland courtesy extended to the superfluous by bus conductors, taxi-men, railway guards, restaurant door keepers, and the clerks in charge of hotel bureaus I was told that neither my presence nor my patronage was needed. Everything was full of everybody, and everybody was full of satisfaction. The struggle for life had assumed a new aspect; only by the favor of the indifferent could one be housed or fed. Even the club attendants had a reproachful look, as though they were wondering why country members should have the bad taste to come up to town at a time when it was given back to the long-exiled young.

That was the secret. In an irresistible flood the young men had carried London, aided and abetted by the young women, who in the intervals of being civil to middle-aged and elderly employers have been patiently awaiting the glad hour.

Even in certain Government offices where girls in their teens are past numbering and seem to spend most of their time moving from one floor to next with papers that never reach their destination, pausing en route for little chats with friends of equal age and similar occupation, there was something of the spirit of May. It was finding expression in diaphanous blouses, stockings made, I imagine, of gossamer, little bunches of flowers, stray curls, a touch of coloring for which nature had turned to art.

I do not think these fascinating young ladies were really busy, but they had assumed an air of activity if they had it not.

At a booking office on a Tube—I reached it by way of a procession about the length of a cricket pitch—an attactive young woman in garments that must surely have been draughty smiled so sweetly in my direction that I was taken aback. Happily I had the sense to glance round and realise in time that the sign of welcome was for the khaki-clad youth who stood a little impatiently behind me. I was more than 20 years too late for it.

A simple incident enough, but it confirmed the conviction that if you are no longer young it is absurd to go to London just now while the year's at the spring. I do not propose to return.

On Setting Up A Home

Young couples who are just starting on the great romance and adventure of getting married speak, if one remembers rightly, of "setting up a home," and, indeed, it is a very pleasant business, with a thrill that is hard to recapture. But some of us who are no longer young couples, whose "marriage lines" are dated several years ago, are now enjoying that old experience again.

Like so many things, good as well as bad, it is all through the war. When it seemed that duty (through I was old and had a family, and conscription was still undreamed of) required me to join the army, there were reasons, which are only our own concern, why my wife and I should break up the little home that we had built almost brick by brick, and store our furniture. It was not a merry job, for though we never spoke our thoughts, even to one another, each was wondering in what circumstances the home would ever be rebuilt, and whether we should both be there when the furniture was again set out for use.

But as things have happened—and have you ever thought, with all the broken homes and the sorrow of war, of the many other little homes where thanksgivings are going up today?—as things have happened we are both here, to take the furniture out of store. So a very wonderful thing has come about; for the second time we are having one of the great adventures of life—we are setting up a home again.

I pass over the hunt for a house. That was a desperate affair, and sometimes in bitterness I said I would mind my own business next time there was a war, but at last the almost impossible and the highly improbable happened, and we can order our furniture to be sent to our new home.

And only now are the real delights beginning. We have our individual interests, as well as our common cares. My wife is wondering whether the kitchen range is all that a kitchen range should be—of course it never is, but every woman keeps believing that, at the next turning of life's road, she will find the ideal cooker—and is measuring for carpets and curtains with the glow and enthusiasm of a bride. If this keeps her amused it is well, for I am putting imaginary shelves in a little den and counting the days to when I shall have all my books unpacked again after their long exile. The recesses on either side of the fireplace will hold a lot, and if I put my writing table at the window I can set more shelves at my left.

Then there are some old photographs and prints that will do very well over the fireplace, with a German helmet and two shell cases—new treasures, these, since last we had a home!—that will stand on the mantelpiece. And in that corner——

But my wife is calling from another room. She wants rose-pink casement curtains and I want cream. I suppose she is going to argue the point again. Ought I to put my foot down?

It was about that big room that faces south. Don't I think it will make a good nursery? Ah, we older folk have an added interest in setting up a home this second tme that was missing when we first planned carpets and counted cupboards a year or two before the war. And that makes this second adventure at setting up a home the best and most thrilling of all.

sions owned by their nationals in Morocco, and attempt to reach some agreement uder which clashes might be avoided. The Algeciras Act was finally drawn up to provide for the organisation of a police force for the eight commercial ports, with a Swiss Inspector-General. A Morocco State Bank was established to be financial agent for the Moors, and it was stipulated that the Bank of England, the Bank of Spain, and the German Imperial Bank should appoint censors to watch the administration of the bank's affairs. Provision was made about taxes, customs duties, and navigation. It was an international experiment in the cotrol of a backward state, but it was not a successful experiment. The elimination of German interests there removes the chief source of intrigue and treachery, and to that extend makes more hopeful the peaceful outlook in the world.

It may be said that the mandatory system is a form of imperialism. It is, however, imperialism under international guarantee and international supervision. Imperialism of the old order, exemplified at its worst by Germany, is to cease. Even when exemplified at its best, as by Great Britain, the nation exercising it was subjected constantly to abuse and suspicion of its motives. Under the League of Nations the mandate for the administration of a backward country becomes a public trust, the nation holding it becomes a regent rather than an overlord. It must report at intervals to the world upon its conduct and the condition of the dependent nation concerned. It is pledged to the maintenance of equal commercial opportunities for all nations desiring to trade in the territory concerned, and to further the well-being of natives and foreigners alike.

Rudyard Kipling recently told an American visitor in London that when he wrote "The White Man's Burden" he had America in mind, not Great Britain. America's isolation has now ceased. She is responsible with the other nations who helped whip Germany for the orderly and safe conduct of the world. She must take upon her own shoulders a large share of the burden. If this means additional privileges it means also vastly augmented responsibilities. Upon England and America together rests the chief duty of making and keeping the world a decent place in which to live and work.

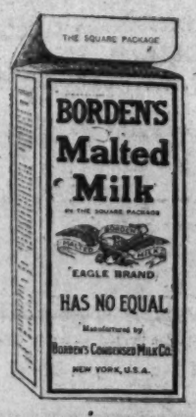
To Keep your Baby perfectly Well this Summer



1. Keep it cool and out-of-doors as much as possible.
2. Give it plenty of boiled water.
3. Make its food light. You, youself, don't eat as much heavy meat in summer as in winter. Lighten your baby's diet.

Also don't give him raw cow's milk with its heavy indigestible curd and germs of summer complaint—summer complaint that kills more babies than any other cause in the world.

Give it Borden's Malted Milk.

It is a complete food, so you need add only water and boil one minute

NEW REPUBLIC ON RHINE FITS POLICY ON RHINE

Its Formation Thought Symptomatic Of Her New Influence In European Politics

SECESSION SEEMS NATURAL

French Diplomat Cites Historical And Religious Grounds For Separation From Prussia

By Walter Duranty

Paris, June 2.—The formation of the new Rhine Republic is in great measure symptomatic of one of the striking changes in European politics. This change is the new and energetic foreign policy of France. During the last half century France, after her 1870 defeat, occupied herself chiefly with "cultivating her own garden," in Voltaire's phrase, and simply built up the Russian alliance as a defense against the German danger. Beyond that her European policy was passive; today it is active.

There is a tendency in certain American and English quarters to speak of France being bankrupt through the war, exhausted and impotent. Such a view fails to take into account the amazing resilience of the French people, their intense patriotism, their political clairvoyance, and, above all, the stimulus given them by victory. What more and here is the most interesting feature of the situation as it concerns all Europe east of the Rhine—the French interests, right from the old frontier of Alsace-Lorraine to Warsaw, are in the hands of men of the new school, war victors, Generals like Mangin and Humbert, as soldiers and diplomats clear-sighted, bold, strong, and successful.

Mangin, who is the supreme French commander on the Rhine, is a man of the school of Gallieni and Lyautey. Under them he received training, not only military, but administrative, of the type which enabled Lyautey to hold just-conquered and half-rebellious Morocco in 1911 with a handful of old Territorials and scattered groups of raw native levies. Mangin's administration, like his strategy, is based on foundations that have been proved right since the days of Caesar. One of them is the old Roman maxim, "Divide and rule." Toward Germany it is the counter-application of Bismarck's watchword that union is strength.

As long ago as last July a French General of the same school then commanding the army, told The New York Times correspondent that France would never be safe against German aggression unless she succeeded in splitting up the Prussianised block which Bismarck had formed. Since then the possibility that a lonely German-Austria might swing into the Prussian orbit has lent pont to his words and stimulated French activities. There has even been talk of an attempt by France to reconstruct Austria, in order to avert this augmentatior, of Prussian strength, by the formation of a new Danubian Federation. Not only would this be a policy resented bitterly by Italy, but it is next door to impracticable, owing to internal differences between the States concerned. Bohemia, Jugo-Slavia and German-Austria.

To split the Prussians by fostering separatist tendencies in the Rhine Provinces and on the part of Bavaria was a wiser and far easier policy. The only wonder is that it was not attempted before.

France Favors The New Republic

The word "fostering," however, does not mean artifically creating something which does not exist. The New York Times correspondent discussed the subject today with one of the leading spirits of the French Foreign Office, who has the further advantage of having spent several years of his boyhood in the Rhine district and knowing the situation thoroughly. He said:

"If the new republic is wholly artificial, if it is a hothouse plant, it will not last, but will wither in the first cold wind. I see no object in pretending that France does not regard the project with a sympathetic eye. But if it is not based on the genuine will of the inhabitants—or at least a considerable part of them—no amount of sympathy on our part will keep it alive. Personally, I believe that such a desire for independence does exist, for the three following reasons:

"First, it is a historical fact that this territory has always been more or less resentful of the Prussian yoke, especially in the country districts, as distinct from the Prusianised towns like Cologne, which I do not believe will join the movement.

"Second, these people are strongly influenced by the Catholic Church, which is an active political force and which favors independence as a result of the anti-clerical policy of Hoffman and others in the German Parliament.

"Third, of all Germany the Rhine territory has been historically the most subject to French influence. After 1870 it was held to Prussia by self-interest as a result of the commercial expansion following Prussia's victory. Now, on the contrary, allegiance only means that they will have to share Prussia's burden, and as one of the richest sections of Germany, will carry a mighty heavy share at that.

"Their interest now bids them to swing toward victorious France and, with access to a share of the coal and Lorraine iron, on which their industries are based, turn their commercial activities westward instead of eastward. I do not imply that the new movement means absolute separation from Germany, but I do suggest that it will be, politically at least, equivalent to the creation of a sort of buffer State, with sufficient autonomy, as far as Prussia is concerned, to weaken, if not wholly demolish, all the hopes of revenge that Prussia may entertain. And it will provide one of the best and safest preventives of future war."

CARDINAL MERCIER PLANS TO MAKE VISIT TO U.S.

Belgian Primate Says 'It Seems That I Am Going To Visit Old Friends'

New York, June 1.—Albert Cardinal Mercier, Archbishop of Malines and Primate of Belgium, the heroic prelate who defied Germany to arrest him and saved his country much suffering through his disregard of the threats of German officials, will arrive in New York in September in response to invitations to thank America in person for the assistance given Belgium.

News of Cardinal Mercier's coming was contained in cable advices received yesterday by the Commission for Relief in Belgium, No. 42 Broadway. Upon his arrival in New York Cardinal Mercier will go to Baltimore, where he will be the guest of Cardinal Gibbons.

Interviewed in Brussels concerning his proposed visit to the United States, Cardinal Mercier sent the following message to America:

"This will be my first trip across the Atlantic, but to me it seems that I am going to visit old friends. From the beginning of the war I realised that Americans were friends of Belgium. American public opinion in those early days saved Belgium even greater suffering than that which she had to endure. When Mr. Hoover established the Commission for Relief the people of occupied Belgium had real evidence of America's friendship.

"If it had not been for American foodstuffs the United States army would upon arrival have found in Belgium only bones of starved women, children and old men, a monument to the cruelty of an enemy of God and man. Belgians have much to thank the American people for, and I view it as an honor that I am to have the opportunity to thank America in person for her military aid, for the food and clothing she sent us, for the men she had in our country as her representatives, men who were never overawed by crimes and threats of the invader."

Cardinal Mercier's name first sprang into world fame when he sent the famous pastoral letter to his clergy, which so enraged the Germans that they sent a detail to tell him he was under arrest. Facing the Germans quite calmly, Cardinal Mercier is reported to have said:

"I am too busy to go with you now. When I finish praying, I will come to you to be properly arrested."

The Germans never carried out their threat of imprisonment as far as the Cardinal was concerned. He was tireless in his relief work for his country.

Duke Of Devonshire To Retire As Governor-General Of Canada

Duke of Devonshire.

The Duke of Devonshire, who succeeded the Duke of Connaught as Governor-General of Canada, will shortly retire from his post, according to a despatch from London. The despatch, quoting the London Daily Mail, says that the office will be offered to the Earl of Athlone, brother of Queen Mary, who would have succeeded the Duke of Connaught as Governor-General of Canada had it not been for his duties with the British Army. The Duke of Devonshire was appointed Governor-General of Canada on June 27, 1916, and was instaled in office on November 11, 1916.

Curtiss Buys Back 2,176 Army Planes

Machines Will Be Put In Order And May Be Offered To The Public For Private Flying

New York, June 1.—The Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor Corporation has closed a deal with the Government for the purchase of 2,176 Curtiss airplanes and 4,608 motors used in the army, according to an announcement made yesterday by W. W. Mountain, vice-president and general manager of the corporation. Although Mr. Mountain did not make public the amount of money involved in the sale it is understood the price paid for the airplanes and motors was $2,700,000, the figure set by the Government when the Curtiss Corporation opened negotiations for the property several months ago.

The contract closing the deal was signed by Major General Charles T. Menoher, head of the Air Service, representing the War Department, and C. M. Keyes, of the Curtiss Corporation. The planes were of the JN-4 type, manufactured at the Curtiss plants at Buffalo, Hammondsport and Garden City. The motors were Curtiss OX-5s.

The negotiations for the planes and motors have extended over a period of several months. On April 27 Mr. Mountain announced that the deal was off because the War Department had inserted a clause in the contract whereby the right was retained to dispose of all other planes of the Curtiss and other types to the public at any time. Later, the question was adjusted, according to Mr. Mountain, and Government and Curtiss engineers proceeded to make an inventory of the machines and motors at thirty-two fields where the planes were used in teaching aviators to fly.

Discussing the reasons for purchasing the planes and motor Mr. Mountain said that the Curtiss interests felt that the future development of the industry would be jeopardised by the indiscriminate selling of the used material to the general public.

"The airplane is still in its infancy and it will be some time before the industry will be a paying one," he said. "We were faced with the serious task of keeping our vast organisation intact until the public realised the business possibilities of aircraft. We felt we were thus compelled to bid for the Curtiss make planes and engines, which the War Department announced it would sell, in order to protect our market and keep the Government from selling to the public machines many of which were unfit for operation without overhauling. Practically all of the planes have had strenuous use.

"We realised if we were going to continue in the airplane industry we had a duty to perform to the public in preventing used planes from being marketed until put in the proper condition."

Mr. Mountain said it was the intention of the purchasers to concentrate the planes and motors at five fields and to maintain at these points a staff of expert mechanics to inspect and overhaul them before placing them on the market. He said the corporation did not expect to make a profit on the venture, as many of the planes could not be repaired sufficiently to meet the requirements set.

New British Engine Surpasses The Diesel

Still's Invention Effects Enormous Economy Of Fuel Energy, Recovering Over 50 Percent

London, May 27.—A secret of engineering which has caused a sensation in the technical world was disclosed to a gathering of scientists and engineers at the Society of Arts yesterday afternoon. It was a new Still internal combustion engine, the result of eight years of research by William Joseph Still, and consists of a double-force engine—using gasoline and steam—which revolutionises the commercial utility of the internal combustion engine.

By raising steam from the heat at present lost in the water jacket and exhaust and then expanding it in the engine at the back of the main piston—one stroke for the steam and one stroke for the combustion pressure—an enormous economy is effected. As Sir Algernon Parsons, who presided, remarked, every one has noticed the steam issuing from the top of the radiators either on a bus or a car, and it is this thermal waste that the Still engine saves. When the ordinary internal combustion engine is overloaded, it gives up work; but the Still engine provides a reservoir of power able to sustain a large overhead for a short time, making this class of engine more stable for many services.

An expert who investigated the capabilities of the engine informed The New York Times representative that it showed nearly ten percent increase of efficiency over the Diesel engine, which is now considered to be the best of all internal combustion types. More than fifty percent of the fuel energy is recovered.

Many interesting features were given by F. E. D. Accand in his address. His claims for the engine are as follows: It is capable of using any liquid or gaseous fuel; recovers the heat which passes through the combustion cylinder; increases the engine power, and reduces fuel consumption. By self-starting the efficiency is raised from thirty to forty-two percent. In marine propulsion the Still engine weighs twenty percent less than the geared turbine plant, and consumes 2,000 tons less fuel for a double journey lasting 1,000 hours.
